Daeshawn Gray is the product of two praying parents, Barnard and Caroline Gray. He earned his bachelor's degree in Human Services from the University of Delaware and has dedicated his life to serving the next generation through faith and leadership.

He is the former Associate Director of Youth and Young Adults for the Allegheny East Conference, where he found great joy in engaging young people with clarity, conviction, and a Christ centered community.

Now serving full-time as a Youth Engagement Specialist, Daeshawn speaks to youth and the adults who lead them, empowering young people to thrive and equipping adults to connect better, lead stronger, and communicate with lasting impact.

Beyond his professional work, Daeshawn has a deep passion for the Word of God, which has opened doors for him to speak across the country, an opportunity he holds with deep gratitude. He is continually inspired by Exodus 33:15: "If Your Presence does not go with us, do not send us up from here." Daeshawn believes that it is only with God's backing that one can truly move forward.
